THEY CROWD US .-- BY BEN BLOOMER. The ladies bless their precious souls! Sweet, sublunary dwellers! Are e'er devising "ways and means

To victimize the "fellers! We've "grinned and borne it," heretofore,

With patience, superhuman, And, like the sunflower to the sun, Have fondly turned to weman.

We've seen our province entered oft, And with most winning speeches Beheld her in the very act, Of slipping on the breeches!

Great fortitude entreating, Averse to aught that would "disturb The quiet of the meeting! But now the ocme has been reached; The dear tormenting souls Are "stirring up" the men with long,

And yet we stood it, like a man,

Unconscionable "poles!" Whene'er to concerts, or to balls, Or even church we go, We scarce can keep our heads above

The sea of calico.

While, sitting straight as barbers' poles, Dismay upon our face, "They crowd us" in the very least Imaginable space!

Dear ladies spare us breathing room. Lay off, lay off, McDuff,
We've suffered silently and long!
And now "cry hold! enough!"

HENRY WARD BEECHER ON NEWSPAPERS. Consider how universal are newspapers in America. They penetrate every nook and corner of society. No other element of pow-er has such a sphere. The pulpit, the court, the lecture, compared with the newspaper, touch society in but a few places. The newspaper in America is universal. It reaches within and without, from surface to core. It travels everywhere, is bought by everybody, read by all classes, and is wholly or nearly the only reading of more than half our population. Its service to good morals and to intelligence among the people is incalcuable. All the libraries of Europe are not of as much service to the nations of Europe as the newspaper is to this American nation. Its power is growing. Who would, twenty years ago, have dreamed of such a growth and power as has been devolped? But the next twenty years will witness a greater. The editor is to be schoolmaster. The best talent will find its highest sphere in the editorial room. Already that chair is more influential than the bench or platform. No brain can act upon so many as that which speaks by the printing press of the daily paper. Ink beats, like blood, in the veins of the nation .- Indepen-

Dr. Whewell, walking in Mr. Hamilton's garden at Cobham, expressed his surprise at the prodigious growth of the trees. "My dear sir," replied Mr. Hamilton, "remember they have nothing else to do."
